

Dr. McKanna Explains His Treatment.

My treatment for the liquor habit is recognized everywhere. It is known as a complete success. It is endorsed by the medical profession, those who have taken the treatment, railroad companies, leading business houses, city and county officials, the press and the public. This is the only treatment which has ever merited such generous endorsement, and the only one that has ever been endorsed in a similar manner. My treatment never fails to destroy all appetite for craving for drink and leaves the patient improved both in body and mind. It builds up and strengthens the organs diseased by the continual use of liquor so that they do not need a stimulant to enable them to perform their work properly. A treatment that doesn't accomplish this must be a failure because the appetite for liquor will return unless the vital organs can do their work without the aid of stimulants. Nothing can take the place of liquor until the disease is cured.

I guarantee to completely subdue the appetite for alcoholism and to eradicate it forever. I cure the liquor habit in all its stages from the moderate drinker who is never intoxicated, but who has established the habit of taking several drinks a day, and cannot stop the habit by an effort of the will, to the man who is an absolute slave to liquor and in the last stages of inebriety, without hypodermic injections, without the use of system-wrecking drugs, without a long and expensive residence in a sanitarium, which other treatments necessitate.

Every patient I have treated frankly acknowledges the value of my treatment in their respective cases, and I could fill the papers with the testimonials of those who have been cured. I choose to publish them all. No dangerous hypodermic is used, and three days' time is all that is required to stop the craving for liquor forever. I invite the closest investigation and can prove the success of this treatment during the past twenty years.

The liquor habit is treated in my sanitarium by rational methods. Every case is carefully diagnosed and the proper remedies prescribed for all special cases. We watch our patients carefully and suit the treatment to the necessities of the condition. I do not use hypodermic injections. No disease known to medical science is treated by hypodermic injections, and the thousands of lives which have been wrecked by hypodermic injections prove their danger. My cure is effected entirely by means of internal remedies which are assimilated into the system through the natural channels and cure the disease of Alcoholism by natural methods. Not a single drop of alcohol has ever occurred in the thousands of cases I have cured. My method is the only effective treatment known to medical science which is absolutely harmless. It not only cures the desire for drink, but builds up the debilitated system and restores the run-down constitution to its normal condition. I am especially desirous of patients whom other treatments have failed to cure. I have cured more inebriates during the last twenty-two years in my sanitarium than have all other treatments combined. I can prove this statement.

The leading railroad systems entering Kansas City will restate a man who has been cured of drink, and if he brings a letter from me to the effect that he has taken my treatment.

DEATH BLOW FOR PEACE AGITATION

Not Even Great Britain Will Indulge Dreams of Limitation of Armament.

PREPARE TO MEET ANY FOE

Nothing Else Remains When a Great Power Like Austria Breaks Compact.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.] LONDON, October 10.—Nothing that has happened in the past twenty-five years has altered the political situation in Europe so fundamentally as the events of the past week. Some thoughtful leaders of the political world go so far as to say that the foundation of new diplomacy has suddenly disappeared. Certain it is that the modern peace agitation has received its deathblow. Not even the semi-socialistic government of Great Britain will indulge any more dreams of limitation of armaments. England will be driven to equip herself to meet any commission that can be brought against her, and other countries also will make self-defense the first principle of their national program.

The Statesman truthfully says that we have returned to the primitive days of the close of the seventeenth century, when treaties were of no effect and force was the only national asset and reliance.

Nothing else remains as a basis of international relations when a great power like Austria, under no pressure of either necessity or temptation tears nature of the situation and the strong attitude taken by Great Britain, France and Russia has evidently induced her to reconsider her position, and she shows a disposition to support more honest principles.

Refuses Press Dispatches.

The Italian authorities refused to transmit a dispatch from The Times-Dispatch correspondent at Rome describing the first attitude of the government and it now reaches London by post.

This is not the only point where the free use of the telegraph has been forbidden this week.

It is known that the Austrian action in regard to Bosnia was received by the population of that province with anything but satisfaction. The apocryphal account of popular rejoicing given out in the middle of the week was the reverse of the truth. Information now at hand is to the effect that the native population is on the verge of revolt, and that nothing but the presence of large bodies of troops, who the nearly armed populace averts an immediate uprising, Austria's administration of Bosnia and Herzegovina has been for years a veritable despotism, made intolerable by persecution and spy system, which led to Turkey's final revolution.

NEW RECORD FOR FLIGHT WITH TWO

Wilbur Wright, Accompanied by M. Painleve, Remains in Air an Hour and Nine Minutes.

TEST MEETS ALL CONDITIONS

Weiller Committee Decides to Accept Trials as Satisfactory, and Will Pay Purchase Money.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.] PARIS, October 10.—There was a great gathering at Le Mans to-day to witness a definite test of the Wright aeroplane under the Lazard Weiller contract. The members of the Weiller committee were present, as well as the best known aviators in France, such as Arch Deacon, Farman and de Lagrange, in addition to representatives of the Minister of War and Marine. Friday night had been very wet, but the rain cleared this morning.

After one false start, caused by the accidental cutting off of the ignition, Wright made a real start at 5:55, with M. Painleve, a member of the Institute and also a member of the Weiller committee, as passenger. He made a very regular flight at a height of from six to ten yards and finished in the darkness after one hour, nine minutes and forty-five seconds. The distance traveled was forty-five miles.

Mr. Wright thus established a new record for a flight at a height of 100 feet, but as there was no wind the flight did not fulfill the conditions of the purchasing contract. The official committee and the famous aviators cheered Wright tremendously at the conclusion of the test.

The Weiller committee has decided to accept to-day's and the previous flights of Mr. Wright as satisfying their contract. They will pay forthwith $50,000 for the French patents to the aeroplane and the same sum one month hence after Mr. Wright has taught three pilots chosen by the syndicate how to run the machine. These three will be Count Lambert, one of the Gens brothers and an officer to be chosen by the War or Navy Department.

up the principal compact existing between European peoples.

Concerns Even United States.

This gratuitous defiance of the principles of common honesty is an attack upon all nations alike. It concerns the United States as much as any European power, and the United States has expressed in high circles that America will use the great weight of her disinterested moral influence and publicly refuse to recognize the practical acts which have raised to-day's war cloud.

Bulgaria's declaration of independence would not have shaken Europe very seriously. It had not the immortal qualities of Austria's performance. Bulgaria violated no treaty to which she was a signatory. Her action might be recognized by general agreement with Turkey and the powers.

This would have been difficult to arrange, no doubt, but it was by no means impracticable. Austria's behavior, however, is inexplicable, and for fear of a more sinister complexion, why did she not offer Turkey what she professes to be an excellent bargain—the sovereignty of Bosnia and Herzegovina in exchange for the possession of the Balkan of Nicholas—and ask the assent of the powers? Obviously because she had no hope of the success of the application. So she sacrificed political honor.

Emperor Growing Feeble.

In view of the fact that diplomacy is always imperfect in dealing with an all fait accompli, it is important that in this connection to throw certain light upon the latest Austrian administration. The aged Emperor has been growing feeble in all his faculties during the last eighteen months. During that time he has, partly by his own desire and partly under the pressure of necessity, been delegating the conduct of affairs more and more to the heir apparent, the Archduke Ferdinand.

The successor to the throne is, in plain language, an ambitious and unscrupulous politician. It will be said that for the dual monarchy when he comes to the throne, he associated with another individual of the same qualities, but more brains—Aehrenthal, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, whose activities for the past few months had begun to create uneasiness before this week's coup. It is too early yet to discuss the potent influence of Berlin, which is behind these two men. It is impossible to refrain from admiring the cleverness which Germany is displaying in dealing with the situation. She finds herself confronted with two irreconcilable duties, but she discharges both without even smiling at their inconsistency. She solemnly condemns Bulgaria for violating the Berlin treaty. She supports Austria for doing the same thing in far more violent fashion, because Austria is an ally and must be indorsed, whatever she does.

It is within Germany's power to force the situation into a state of war without assuming any responsibility whatever. Hence Europe is watching Berlin with greater anxiety than any feature of the crisis.

It may safely be said in advance that the writer will discover nothing alarming in Berlin itself. If Germany wants war her object will be approached secretly in other directions, and the effects of her efforts will first appear at some point in the Balkans, probably on the Turkish frontier.

Italy's Part Not Creditable.

Italy's attitude in the crisis is by no means creditable to her government. The first reports indicated that Italy had been squared by Austria, and Foreign Minister Tittoni's speech at Carate seemed to confirm this view.

The policy of the present Italian government is purely opportunistic. It is divided between an inclination to ally itself with the Triple Alliance and its new Anglo-French friendship. During the past two days the alarming

DOING THEIR DUTY

Scores of Richmond Readers Are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty.

When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow.

Urinary trouble, diabetes, Doan's Kidney Pills cure them all.

Richmond people indorse our claim. Mrs. H. H. Greenstreet, 331 North Twenty-third Street, Richmond, Va., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at the Owens & Minor Drug Co., cured me of kidney trouble, and I have no hesitancy in indorsing them. When I began their use my condition was serious as the result of the kidneys not performing their work properly. My back was very lame and stiff, and in the morning it was hard for me to get out of bed. The pains were most acute when I stooped or lifted, and it often seemed as if I would be unable to endure them. After using various remedies without success I decided to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial. They helped me at once, and a further supply disposed of my trouble entirely. I have since given other persons who have used them, and the best of results have been obtained in every case."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Albion Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

gracefully to just the correct angle to suit the speed.

"In making a curve an aeroplane is actually safer than an automobile. The prevalence of undulations and atmosphere necessitates the closest attention to the two levers controlling equilibrium and altitude.

"Both of these were kept constantly on the fiddle with slight movements. I noticed how near the earth's surface even calm weather was composed of spiral movements, varying in diameter, sometimes vertical, sometimes horizontal, and there were little hills and valleys and streams of air, indeed, a new world with scenery of great variety, which though invisible to the eye was none the less felt by the operator of the aeroplane.

"The maintenance of equilibrium and steering control is the great problem which for centuries has baffled the ingenuity of man. Now it has been solved by the Wrights.

"Wilbur flying sometimes above trees, sometimes a yard from the ground, showed the most perfect control of the machine imaginable. Side gusts and currents caused gentle dipping motions, not unlike the action of a ship, but the machine was always in complete control, and came to a standstill a few yards from the ground. On landing we skinned our knees. When starting the machine was demonstrated, namely, no matter at what speed a curve is taken, the machine adjusts its own banking, and it can only require patience and practice by any intelligent man possessed
